Join the USC Dornsife Middle East Studies Program and the USC School of Cinematic Arts in celebrating the 50th anniversary of Gillo Pontecorvo's The Battle of Algiers. Sohail Daulatzai, Associate Professor of Film and Media Studies and African American Studies at UC Irvine, will present his book Fifty Years of The Battle of Algiers: Past as Prologue following a screening of the film. Olivia Harrison, Assistant Professor of French and Italian and Middle East Studies, will moderate. The talk will expound on the legacy and influence the film has had on power and politics and anti-imperial struggles around the globe, from the Black Power and Chicano movements in the US to the Palestinian liberation movement and IRA abroad.
